Cross-Connection & Backflow Prevention

After using a hose attachment to spray his lawn for weeks, Bob disconnected the attachment and took a drink of water from the hose. A short time later Bob became very ill.

What happened?

At some time while Bob was spraying the weed killer, the water pressure dropped and the poison that he was spraying on the lawn was drawn back up into the hose. When Bob took a drink from the hose, he drank water mixed with weed killer.

If Bob had a hose bib vacuum breaker on his hose connection, he could have prevented this cross-connection.

If you have any questions about cross-connection and backflow prevention, call Scott at (435)691-3129.
